CRIME:

It is an unfortunate fact that criminal incidents of all types occur on university campuses. Therefore most universities investigate and make public records of the nature and quantity of each incident classified as a criminal act that occurred on their campuses.

REPORTING CRIMES:

At Langston University crime victims, regardless of how seemingly insignificant the crime, are encouraged to promptly report the incident to the Langston University Police department or to any appropriate police agency. To report a crime, a victim or witness need only call or report to the campus police facility and an officer will respond to the location of the incident or take the details of the incident at the police facility.

An official police report will be generated and a copy of the report will be made available to the victim upon request. Each day the incidents from the previous day, excluding names, are summarized and made available to the Langston University Office of Student Affairs and the Office of the President, and the media (Upon Request).

Each month the number of incidents in each category of crime are documented and reported to the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation, who in turn provides the information to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for statistical purposes. These Statistics reflect actual incidents that have been reported to the Langston University Police Department, as well as to other University Officials who have significant responsibilities for the various students and campus activities as defined by the Jeanne Clery Policy and Campus Crime Statistics Act.

It must be noted that incidents reported to other University Officials do not always result in a criminal investigation when the victim chooses not to pursue the matter any further with the law enforcement or criminal prosecution process, at which time the victim may seek an alternative Resolution such as the student judicial/disciplinary process via the Office of Student Affairs.

If you are the victim of a crime and do not want to pursue action within the University System or the criminal justice system, you may still want to consider making a confidential report. With your permission, the Chief or a designee of LUPD can file a report on the details of the incident without revealing your identity. The purpose of a confidential report is to comply with your wish to keep the matter confidential, while taking steps to ensure the future safety of yourself and others. With such information, the University can keep an accurate record of the number of incidents involving students, determine where there is a pattern of crime with regard to a particular location, method, or assailant, and alert the campus community to potential danger. Reports filed in this manner are counted and disclosed in the annual crimes statistics for the institution.

CRIMES IN PROGRESS:

To report a crime in progress, a person, victim, or witness, can call 3366 or 405- 740-0761 If you are using a cellular phone or simply call one of the listed police phone numbers. Either reporting method will prompt an immediate response of the campus police to the location identified by the caller. Or the hotline listed below to remain anonymous

L.U.P.D. HOT LINE

Victims of serious crimes may request support personnel such as ministers, rape crisis counseling, or domestic violence counseling at Anytime once the crime has been reported to the campus police or a university official. Victims of crimes may also be eligible For, funds through the Oklahoma Victims Compensations Fund, administered by the Logan County District Attorney's Office.

Missing Person Report CONFIDENTIAL

The MPR provides a format to collect information in an efficient and coherent manner and is used to support a missing person investigation. If a friend or family member is missing report your findings to the authorities immediately.

Confidential Reporting Procedures

If you are a victim of a crime and do not wish to pursue action within the university or the criminal justice system, you may still want to consider making a confidential report. With your permission, the Chief or a designee of the LUPD can file a report on the details of the incident without revealing your identity. The purpose of a confidential report is to comply with your wish to keep the matter confidential, while taking steps to ensure the future safety of yourself and others. With such information, the University can keep an accurate record of the number of incidents involving students, determine where there is a pattern of crime with regard to a particular location, method, or assailant, and alert the campus community to potential danger. Reports filed in this manner are counted and disclosed in the annual crime statistics for the institution.

an assumption that unrestricted access to the building is possible.

Some buildings on campus are rarely locked, at the department's request, since student study and work on projects at all hours of the day and night. Individual offices should be locked by user on a presumption that the building is accessible.

Residence halls have open access between the hours of 6 A.M. to midnight, Sunday through Thursday and 6 A.M. to 2 A.M. on Friday and Saturday. During non-open access hours, all residence hall doors are locked. Instances of propped open doors have occurred, and again residents are encouraged to take security precautions in the halls and rooms. Individual rooms should be locked at all times for your safety.

Langston University recognizes that laws and rules are necessary for society to function and supports the enforcement of law by governmental agencies and rules by officials of the University. All persons on the campus are subject to these laws and rules at all times. Local law enforcement officers are welcome to patrol the campus to assist Langston University Police Department in deterring crime. Instances where state police resources are needed are determined jointly between the Chief of Police and other Langston University officials. Crimes committed at off campus facilities under the control of Langston University will be disclosed if they come to the attention of LUPD.

As set forth in federal, state, and local laws the rules and regulations of Langston University which prohibit the unlawful possession, use or distribution of illicit drugs, and alcohol by students and employees in buildings, facilities, grounds, or other property owned and/or controlled by the University or as part of University activities.

Note: Under Langston University regulations, no 3.2 beer or other alcoholic beverages are “NOT” allowed in Langston University housing or apartments located on Langston University property no matter your age.

Drug and alcohol laws are vigorously enforced on the Langston University campus. Violators are subject to criminal prosecution in the District Court of Logan County. The enforcement techniques can range from plain view violations to long term undercover investigations by local, state, and federal agents and agencies.

The University Counseling Center and Employee Assistance Program offer counseling and rehabilitation programs for students and employees, respectively. Should these programs not meet your needs, there are other programs offered in the community or nearby cities that may better address your needs. A number of such programs are listed in the Langston University Dangerous Drugs and Alcohol Abuse pamphlet.

SEXUAL ASSAULT & Rape

What to Do If You Are Victimized?

The Langston University sexual assault prevention and intervention efforts involve the entire community, which include members of the Langston University community consisting of representatives from the Langston University Police Department, Division of Student Life i.e. Campus Housing, Counseling Center, Langston University Faculty, Greek Life, Student Health Center. These groups collectively provide training programs, presentations, and workshops to any interested individual or group on the topic of sexual assault.

PROCEDURES TO FOLLOW:

If you become a victim of sexual assault, you should follow certain procedures and consider several options.

These procedures and options are clearly outlined in the rape avoidance seminars mentioned above and the Rape Prevention Pamphlets made available to the Langston University community through the Counseling Center, and the Office of Student Affairs. These outlined techniques and strategies help students recognize and avoid sexual assault threats.

Contact the LUPD:

When you report a sexual assault to the Langston University Police Department or the City of Langston Police Department an officer will be sent to your location. The primary focus of the reporting officer to the scene will be to determine the extent of physical and emotional trauma that you have suffered. If the attack has just occurred moments prior to the officer's arrival to the scene, the officer will want a brief review or some basic details about the events that transpired.

Some the questions, which may be asked by the reporting officer, will include:

- A description of the attacker
- The direction the attacker took when leaving the scene
- A description of the vehicle used by the assailant
- Was the attacker someone that you knew before the attack
- How did the attacker gain access into your apartment or room

Agree to have a Sexual Assault Examination:

An officer or designee will take you to the Stillwater Medical Center, or the Oklahoma Health Science Center to be examined by a physician. You will be given a complete physical examination and treated for any injuries that you may have suffered. If you would like a friend or relative to be with you every effort will be made to accommodate you. In addition you may be examined for the purpose of obtaining evidence, which would be necessary in court during the examination appropriate antibiotic therapy can be given to decrease the chances of developing venereal disease.

After the examination the officer or designee may bring you back to the campus police facility or another location to complete the interview. Again you are encouraged to have a counselor or relative present during the interview. It must be noted that the victim of a rape or sexual assault may not be responsible for legal or medical expenses. Your case will be prosecuted by the District Attorney's Office; you will only have to contribute your time.

Evidence:

Preserving evidence is of paramount importance after a sexual assault has occurred. Victims should be careful not to bathe, douche, wash clothing, or tamper with other potential evidence after a sexual assault. Your first inclination may be to do one or more of the above; however you should resist the temptation. Evidence is critical in a criminal prosecution.

LUPD Investigation:

Later, at the police facility or a designated location, you will be asked to be more specific about the events of the attack. You may have a person of your choosing with you during this period.

Please keep in mind that this line of questioning is done to help the investigation and to help you arrange the events firmly in your mind. Your comments will probably be tape-recorded for future reference. This will make testifying in court much easier and less frightening. The interview will be conducted considerably and courteously only the investigating officer should ask you questions, during the interview.

Based upon the conversation with the officer, you can decide whether to pursue criminal charges or not (threats or harassment of a rape victim after charges have been filed are rare). When finished at the police facility you may go to a place of your choice.

It must be noted that Langston University and City of Langston police officers have been trained to deal with sexual assault victims. However, should you feel uncomfortable speaking to a male officer and would prefer talking to a female, do not hesitate to say so.

Every effort will be made to notify a female interviewer such as a counselor, or female volunteer who will respond.

You may also report a rape or sexual assault to the residence hall director, apartment management, a university counselor, or health worker at the LU infirmary.

It must be noted that you do not have to file charges against an attacker if you report a rape; however it is wise to give the information to the police anyway. The Information and suspect description you give may help locate a suspect in other offenses and possibly prevent another person from becoming a victim of a rape. Secondly the police will not know that there is a rapist on campus unless you tell them. The police will not pressure you to press charges.

SUPPORT SERVICES:Office of Student Affairs

If you do not want your case to be addressed through the criminal justice system, another alternative is available. Cases involving students who are accused of non-academic misconduct might be assigned to the Office of Student Affairs. Persons found guilty of sexual assault, forcible or non-forcible, could be placed on probation or suspended from Langston University.

Both the accuser and the accused are entitled to the same opportunities to have others present during a campus disciplinary hearing, and both are entitled to be informed of the outcome of any disciplinary proceeding. You can obtain further information concerning the disciplinary process by contacting the Office of Student Affairs at 466-3444 or consult the Student Handbook.
